Policy Reminder Regarding Late Work
Effective February 22, 2016, Maharishi University of Management does not give a grade of Incomplete. Students enrolled in a course will be given the grade that they have earned based upon completed work and in-class performance accumulated by the end of the course. Students who are not able to complete the final work of a course, typically in the final week, due to illness or family emergency or other compelling circumstances beyond their control, may petition the professor in writing to grant more time. Most incomplete work should be made up during the weekend after the final day of a course. In the event the student was sick or otherwise incapacitated for this final weekend, the student has up to 32 days from the end of the course to submit work. The faculty may also request documentation of the illness or other emergency. This petition should not be used generally in the case of students who miss more than three full days, or six sessions, of a four-week course (or two days for a two-week course). These students should be given an NC or W depending on the circumstances. Nor should it be used to re-do work that the student would like to re-do for a better grade. The petition is only to cover work that cannot be submitted on time due to illness, family emergency, or other compelling circumstances.

If the petition for additional time is granted by the professor, he or she will form a contract with the student, including the specific assignments that need to be completed and their due date(s). If the required work is submitted as specified in the contract before the professor turns in his or her grades (generally ten days after the end of the course), the student will receive the grade he or she earned through his or her in-class work and work done during the extended time. If the required work is submitted after the end of the grading period, but within 32 days of the end of the class, in keeping with the contract, the student’s grade will be amended by the professor from what it had been at the end of the grading period to what he or she had earned by the end of the time agreed upon in the contract. After the 32 days from the end of the course, no grade can be altered in the Registrar’s database, except through written appeal to the Dean of Academic Programs.
